ADSBS Announces Executive Secretary

The American Dorper Sheep Breeders Society Board of Directors has hired Kasey Woolam Gordon of Danville, Kentucky to serve as Executive Secretary. Kasey grew up in the livestock industry with registered sheep and beef cattle. Her passion for the livestock industry extends today as she actively farms with her husband and his family, backgrounding feeder cattle and running both a commercial and registered cow herd.

Kasey attended college at The Pennsylvania State University earning her BS in Agricultural and Extension Education - Leadership Development and Communications and minor in Animal Science. Kasey's work experiences include serving as the Activities Director for the North American Limousin Foundation and Marketing Specialist for Burkmann Industries. Her work with the Limousin Foundation included working with shows, sales, leadership development and youth programming. At Burkmann, Kasey has developed marketing campaigns utilizing print, video and social media she also plans meeting and training sessions for their team members and customers. We feel that the combination of her hands-on experience, education and work experiences leave her well prepared to serve the Society membership and board of directors.

Kasey's first event will be the North American International Livestock Expo in Louisville this November. However, you may have met her if you attended the All-American Junior Sheep Show in 2018 or 2019 where she could have been seen volunteering in the office or ringside. When not working Kasey and her husband Adam enjoy spending their free time on the farm with their daughter Virginia or traveling back to Connecticut to see Kasey's family.
